Ajwain (Trachyspermum Ammi)

Saunf (Foeniculum Vulgare)

Svet Jeera (Cuminum Cyminum)

Ela Chhoti (Elettaria Cardamomum)

Peppermint Oil (Mentha Piperata)

Ajwain (Trachyspermum Ammi)

Thymol present in ajwain seeds has antacid property that helps reduce acid refluxes and balances production of acid in the stomach. It also provides relief to the mucous membrane of the stomach from acidity, reduces that feeling of heaviness in the stomach and improves digestion.

Saunf (Foeniculum Vulgare)

The components of essential oils present in fennel triggers the secretion of digestive juices and enzymes which in turn paces up the process of digestion. This helps reduce bloating of the belly due to flatulence (excessive gas formation). Inflammation of the stomach and the intestine is reduced by fennel and facilitates maximum absorption of nutrients from the digested food.

Jeera (Cuminum Cyminum)

Cumin is rich in anti-inflammatory antioxidants, and is also known to be antibacterial and antiseptic. It can solve a host of your tummy woes, fortify digestive tract, relieve nausea, and bloating and constipation.

Elaichi Chhoti (Elettaria Cardamomum)

The essential oils in elaichi help strengthen the mucosal lining of your stomach. It increases the amount of saliva you secrete. On chewing the pod, it releases a slew of essential oils that stimulate your salivary glands, which in-turn stimulate your stomach lining to work better, improving your appetite and reduces the amount of acidity you experience. Elaichi's essential oils also impart a cooling flavour and sensation that help reduce the burning you feel during an attack of acidity

Peppermint Oil (Mentha Piperata)

Peppermint essential oil is perhaps the most popular oil for heartburn relief. Peppermint has a pleasant smell, but it is also known for its ability to relieve acid reflux, heartburn, and indigestion. This is primarily because it effectively alleviates the pain of a heartburn.
